BLACK HISTORY MONTH

Report to the Listeners

Valerie van Isler, Interim General Manager

"Why are you speaking out against the war, Dr. King? Why are you joining the voices of dissent? Well, I have seven major reasons for bringing the war into the field of my moral vision..."

As our February Folio went to press—the day after Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday—the United States had just launched one of the most massive aerial attacks in history against the nation of Iraq. In yet another midnight strike, hundreds of fighter bombers and cruise missiles hit the major cities of Baghdad and Basra at 2:30 in the morning. President Bush had authorized "Operation Desert Storm" and started another war in the Middle East. Throughout the chilling days when every diplomatic initiative, proposal or plan was frustrated by Washington or Baghdad or others, the voices of peace, ignored by the major media, began to break through the thundering silence in this country and bring this conflict into the nation's field of moral vision.

WBAI was here to bring you the call to conscience before the guns began, after the firestorm in the desert started, and when the body bags began to come home. In fact, we have taken a leadership role in this nation's community radio network with our coverage of the Middle East in programs like "The Stakes in the Gulf: The Countdown to War." This national teach-in, sponsored by the Campaign for Peace, featured the brilliant analyst Professor Noam Chomsky, renowned scholar Professor Eqbal Ahmed, and author Barbara Ehrenreich.

During these fateful days, we broadcast the "International Forum on the Gulf Crisis" with former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark, British parliamentarian Sir Anthony Benn, and scientist Professor Michio Kaku. We began this program with the words: "Ladies and gentlemen, the United States has just bombed Iraq...and the war has started...." We immediately went to crisis mode with 24-hour coverage and reporting from our sources in the Gulf—Jordan, Israel, and the West Bank—and in Europe and around the world. Many thousands of people in cities and towns all across the United States and Canada were tuned in to WBAI radio as we presented these special reports. And we went to Washington to bring you live coverage of the demonstrations at the White House and on Capitol Hill. Along the way, we have conducted some of the best interviews on the impact of this war on the lives of the people in the region and at home. So many of you joined us in 1990 for our coverage of the U.S. invasion of Panama. Stay with us now as we continue our comprehensive coverage of the Gulf Crisis. We will be here for the duration....

This February, as we dedicate special programming for African American History month, we acknowledge the enduring legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and his profound message of peace to all the world.

Saving the Audubon

by Peggy Dye

Activist and writer Peggy Dye is a self-described "happy columnist" on Emanations (Sundays, 8:30PM), and a "fan of Shelton Walden" (Walden's Pond, Mondays, 1:30AM; Wednesday Morning Show, 6:00AM). She is also a founding member of the Save the Audubon Coalition.

Last February, 400 men and women, mostly in their 20s and mostly Black and Latino, stamped and cheered in bitter cold streets in a march to launch a movement aimed at saving the Audubon Ballroom from a development plan that would erase it from Harlem.

The venerable but run-down Audubon and adjoining San Juan Theater were once home to Black jazz bands, Jewish vaudeville, Hispanic theater, and to the founding of the Transit Workers Union. Their halls were a rallying point for revolutionaries, such as Puerto Rican nationalist Pedro Albizu Campos and Malcolm X. In fact, it was in the ballroom that Malcolm X was assassinated 25 years ago.

To preserve the Audubon as an historic landmark and cultural center, the Save the Audubon Coalition (STAC) challenged the city and Columbia University to scrap their plan for a gene-splicing, virus-snooping, life-tinkering biotechnology park-for-profit on the Audubon site and several others nearby. For almost a year, our black-led yet integrated group—including environmentalists, preservationists, Columbia students, and political activists—has organized and protested.

Some would say we've already won our battle and should feel satisfied at having moved the immovable at City Hall. Last August, at the eleventh hour of the final meeting of the Board of Estimate, the Dinkins administration hatched a deal to save the facade or a slice of the Audubon Ballroom for a "Malcolm X monument" in the new biology factory.

The details have yet to be fixed. City press releases talk about preserving 55 percent of the ballroom proper, but language in the agreement between Columbia and the city actually calls for saving whatever is financially feasible. But with "fiscal crisis" the words of the day, who knows what the city will deem feasible?

We do know that the city intends to provide rich subsidies—about $30 million initially—to Columbia and its partners in the development project.

Audubon partisans, although Black-led, are not going to let our first Black mayor off the hook. Occupying the ballroom on Election Day eve, youthful members of STAC sent Dinkins a letter stating, "While countless numbers of our people go homeless, suffer from inadequate health care and are subject to improper education, we abhor the city of New York's finding (money) to underwrite the construction of an unnecessary and community-destabilizing facility."

STAC won't be placated by a slice of the Audubon. Over Christmas week, our attorney at the Center for Constitutional Rights filed suit against the city to kill the entire project. The action has several grounds, including charges that the city government has blocked public commentary on the environmental impact statement, and failed even to look at the public health hazards of a biotechnology factory complex in an urban center.

Six months before he died, Malcolm X spoke at the Audubon. He called for a "cultural center in Harlem which will include people of all ages in all the arts ... covering the entire spectrum of Afro-American history ... [to] be a journey to our rediscovery of ourselves, [to] unbrainwash an entire people."

As a Black woman, I celebrate our efforts over the last year to act on Malcolm X's challenge. Reclaiming the Audubon translates a global yearning for community, self-identity, and culture into the leading language of the city—real estate. The real bottom line in the Audubon struggle is the commitment by the grass roots to move with the higher power of the human spirit, which transcends governments, knocks on the door of politics-as-usual, and says: we dare to seek a richer way, so we become all that we can be as free human beings.

From the Program Director

by Andrew Philips

Since Spring, I have been working with the Program Council; since October 10th, we have discussed changes based on my "ten page memo", and after due consideration we will implement these changes as of February 1st.

First, an update on some recent changes. Wednesday evenings have become "information night" with Explorations, The Zeitgeist Hour, Off the Hook, The Personal Computer Show, and Earthwatch. This block of information technology programs is proving popular among our listeners. New York Collage, with Nancy Rodriguez, has moved to Thursdays from 9-10:00PM, (except that the last Thursday of each month will be a special Live from the Nuyorican Poets' Cafe.) On Monday, Malachy McCourt has replaced Al Angeloro in the 4:30-6:00PM Talkback! slot.

Saturday mornings, Lunchpail, with Paul Gorman, will run from 10:30AM to Noon, ending one half hour earlier. Housing Notebook moves earlier (Noon-1:00PM), and has graciously yielded the last Saturday of the month to Disabled in Action Speaks, a community which deserves a regular program on WBAI. Ed Haber's Piper in the Meadow Straying follows from 1:00-2:30PM, while the next hour will be set aside for Women's programming. Hear & Now, from 3:30-4:30, brings to our air new composers and music seldom heard elsewhere. Soundtracks and The Golden Age of Radio, two popular shows moved from Sunday, should round out a strong Saturday lineup.

On Sunday, Creative Unity moves to 10:30-12:30 at night, following Emanations. They will alternate with J Smooth's Underground Railroad, whose host, John Randolph, informs us, "The media have fostered an image of rappers as creven savages whose words inspire gang violence.

Arenas have banned rap music, few rap records get commercial airplay, and recent puritanical crusades have scared some stores into taking rap records off the shelf. WBAI, always promoted as the voice of the voiceless, now will provide an outlet for African-American youth's strongest voice." The combination should work well; J Smooth invites youth into our audience, while Creative Unity presents radio drama and ideas. From 1:00AM, Sydney Smith will return with Carrier Wave, providing continuity of Live Radio in the slot.

Monday, while Margot Adler is on Sab-batical, Peter Lamborn Wilson's Moorish Orthodox Radio Crusade will alternate with Betsy Lenke, from 11:45PM—1:30AM, while Danah Gef-fen will alternate with Walden's Pond. Tuesday, Bill Farrar's Jazz Sampler will now alternate with Stolen Moments. We need to keep Bill in our line-up, and this is a reasonable compromise until fur-ther work can be done. The final change set at press time is on Friday, where Jordyn Tyson's Unsung Heroes will now alternate with the Black Rock Coalition.

I feel these program changes bring more consistency and flow to our over-all programming. We are beginning to redress three major areas of weakness in our lineup—Women's programming, Arts, and youth-oriented programs. Live radio (46 hours) and music program-ming (48 hours) comprise together more than half of our programs, while arts and public affairs are currently un-derrepresented. I expect we will see more shortening of programs to tighten our format and permit more diversity in our line-up.

In making program changes, the pro-gram council, with the program director, must consider the Pacifica mandate and the perceived needs and desires of our audience. Our objective is to create the possibility for great programs to reach the widest possible audience. As a community radio station, WBAI is obliged to build diversity and encourage a wide variety of producers. Producers are encouraged and welcome to attend program council meetings each Thursday

10:30 J Smooth's Underground Railroad. Finally, the Mothership has arrived at WBAI. In the eighties Hip Hop revolutionized the sound of popular music, and became African (American) youth's only major outlet for cultural and political expression. As we enter the nineties, the Hip Hop nation finds itself under assault from self-appointed censors, media distortionists, and commercial impostors like Vanilla Ice who saturate the Pop market while the music's true innovators remain unheard. Fortunately, WBAI enters the decade on the frontlines of the battle to keep the music alive, with J Smooth (Hip Hop Radioactivist) smuggling two hours of authentic underground sound over the airwaves every other Sunday. Tonight's premiere episode will feature our favorite music from 1990, as well as a review of the major events of the year in which Hip Hop bumrushed mainstream American culture.

10:00 The Write Stuff. Join producer Brandon Judell as he speaks with Kenneth Good, author of Into the Heart: One Man's Pursuit of Love and Knowledge Among the Yanomama. In 1975 Good, an anthropologist, traveled to the Venezuelan Amazonia for a 15-month study of the Yanomama, a Stone Age tribe. During that time he drank the ashes of the dead, chewed on roasted tarantulas, and was presented with a nine-year-old wife, Yarina (whom he later "really" marries and brings to the Western world). After observing numerous gang-rapes of the women there, Good must choose between being an objective observer or a Westerner forcing his morals on a society where he is an invited guest.

Also tonight, Ntozake Shange will represent the book Render Me My Song: African American Women Writers from Slavery to the Present, edited by Sandi Russell. This major study deals with Sojourner Truth, Zora Neale Hurston, Toni Morrison, Gloria Naylor, Alice Walker, and many others.

RING DAY 1991 IN MEMORIAM: GUNTER KOSSODO

11 APRIL 1918 - 14 NOVEMBER 1990

Twenty years ago, Gunter Kossodo inherited me from a friend who said, "Keep an eye on the kid." In his living room, I learned more about what making music really means than I had in music school. We listened to fantastic performances, thought, talked, debated...

After I did a couple of Ring Days all by my lonesome, I decided it would be much more fun for both you and me to invite Gunter on the show. It has been.

Odd things sometimes happened. I'd call him with my idea for the aspect or point of view I thought we should delve into, and I'd usually find out he'd come up with the same idea. By the time we got into the studio, though (me at the crack of dawn, he after Rheingold), we usually had hashed things out pretty thoroughly. In the last moments, as the music ran out, we'd decide what the topic would be for that commentary break. What did we do during the music? We talked. Politics. Bach. Tennyson. Verdi. World War Two. Beethoven. The possibility of World War Three. Oh, yes, and Wagner. And food! You wouldn't believe how much two people could pack away.

We were completely isolated in the control room. One morning, we walked out and were shocked to find the ground covered with snow. We went to my place and talked till the rest of the world woke up.

The last couple of years, because of his health, I trekked to his place with my trusty equipment, edited the tapes, and gave him the opportunity to hear himself on the air. I won't tell you what he called me when I played Melchior's forging scene after the tenor of the day just managed to get through it.

When Melchior was brought up in comparison to another singer, Gunter would say, "Ja, ja, OK, but let's speak of human beings." Gunter Kossodo was human enough to wear out and die. Yes, it was too soon.

Someone asked me with whom I planned to replace him. No, I didn't sock him, but I was (if you can imagine it) speechless. Replace? Impossible.

For this year's Ring Day, I've rounded up all the commentary tapes that I can find from past years and will play the best ones for you. This will be a very special Ring Day and the last one that will feature throughout the day my friend Gunter Kossodo.

Please join me. Mansya

Disabled in Action Speaks

Sat. noon-1:00PM Feb. 23

On July 26, 1990, President Bush signed into law the most significant piece of civil rights legislation ever brought forth for disabled Americans. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) not only protects the rights of people with disabilities, but provides them with ammunition to fight discrimination on all levels. The ADA also covers public accommodations and services, telecommunication and employment.

In this first part of a 3-part series, host Lynn Albin and guests take an in-depth look at the ADA and its ramifications for disabled Americans. Mike Auberger, co-founder of the national disability rights group ADAPT, will discuss last March's protests in which 164 disabled activists took over the Capitol Rotunda and a congressman's office in a final effort to have the ADA passed by the House of Representatives before it recessed. Marilyn Goldman, policy analyst for the Disability Rights Education & Defense Fund, Inc., will address the public accommodations segment of the law, which includes theaters, hotels, restaurants, and professional services.

The most difficult barrier to break continues to be the oppressive attitudes of temporarily able-bodied (TAB) people who refuse to recognize that they, too, may one day become members of our community. So tune in, get informed. Disabled in Action Speaks can now be heard at this time on the last Saturday of each month.

Holmes-Clarke Music and issues focusing on the African American community.

10:30 The Creative Unity Collective Show. Once again, this is it, turn it up, here we go! The Creative Unity Collective kickin' more of that buck naked booty stinkin' radical type style o' free form radio. Say the members of C.U. — before they were slapped with a $3.2 million lawsuit by BBD—"Our show is mentally Afrocentric, smoothed out on the live radio tip, with a politically left radical appeal." Ooh, that certainly sounds "hype." Tune in, why don't you? Stereo, 2 hrs.

Dear Max Schmid
Your program, The Golden Age of Radio, is one I look forward to every Sunday since I don't own a T.V. and don't care to. I am troubled by your Jack Benny series which includes Rochester, a stereotyped Afro-American boss lackey. In this day and age, when racism runs high in the media and stereotypes such as the aforementioned are gone with the wind, this program has no place on WBAI, which justly prides itself on being progressive, multi-national, multi-racial, and anti-biased.

Don't let your listeners down, Max. An old timer who well remembers the golden age of radio.

B Lampell NYC

Dear Mr Schmid
I am not among those who think "Rochester" Anderson's character is pure stereotype on Jack Benny's radio program. Jack made sure that Rochester was treated the same as every other cast member, and also made his character a lot smarter than Jack's. If there are any listeners who object to the way Rochester was depicted, it was those few lines about gambling (crap games) and mild sex jokes ("Mr Benny did you ever see a Hershey bar with all the almonds in the right places?") that cause Rochester to sound "offensive" today. In that respect, he was no more offensive than Phil Harris's supposed drinking and illiteracy and Dennis Day's gullibility and "idiocy." In other words, a character role, not to be taken too seriously during a radio show.

Sincerely

B.I. Grauman
Long Branch, N.J.

Dear WBAI,
Happy New Year! I would like to make a request for 1991. On behalf of the hundreds of fine musicians whose music you play on WBAI, I would ask you to give them the honor and respect they are due by naming them. Of course, when a program is about music or a musician, you are careful to identify them, but I am constantly dismayed at the many times you use music as a "filler" between segments without having the courtesy to say, "That was...." It only takes a moment.

I'm a musician and ethnomusicologist and I have been made aware over the years of how Western anthropologists have used non-western sources shamelessly, recording them and selling records without compensation to the artist or even identification. It makes me cringe when I hear a progressive station like BAI doing the same thing. I also believe that the anonymity denigrates the music itself—the care and passion and hard work of a musician should not be chopped into little anonymous bits and stuffed between "important" programs.

Sincerely,

(Ms.) Toby Glukman
Jamaica, NY

Dear Backtalk,
During every marathon, we are frequently reminded of how important we listener-members are to WBAI's continued operation and how much the station values us.

The annual hassle to collect our premium certainly has made us wonder, but the insult to our intelligence delivered on December 11 reached some new kind of low.

Episodes of the ZPPR series "Visit New Grimston Anyway" have too often turned up missing at air time, but on that date, the sound faded down and disappeared, obviously before the episode ended.

At that point, the station was five minutes behind schedule, but that was no fault of this taped production. Rather it resulted because the host of the previous program lacked the nerve to cut off a talkative caller and sign off on time.

There aren't words enough in the dictionary to describe such a trashing of a show some of us had expected to hear in its entirety. Here's a sample, however: rude, inconsiderate, contemptuous and contemptible, unprofessional, bush league, cheesy and slimy, culturally barbaric, nitwitted, moronic, cretinous, etc.

Such censorship—which is what this amounts to, even if caused by incompetence instead of malice—is totally hypocritical on the part of a station that touts itself as free-speech radio. Listeners deserve an apology.

Angrily yours

Ferwick Anderson

Backtalk!

Dear WBAI,
Enclosed is my check for $10.00 as I pledged. I've been glued to WBAI since the upheavals in the Eastern Bloc of Europe. I have also been an avid listener since the station originated. I can't imagine life without WBAI; same goes for my family. We are original subscribers.

I didn't mind the pitching this time because it was accompanied by information, and your pitchers are delightful, hard-working personalities. Jenny, Amy, and Julie are so delicious and capable. And Samori, Valerie and the others of the news and political staff—Leo Cawley, Robert Knight, Dennis—such brilliance and dedication; and the good Bob Fass and Carletta—I could go on and on; we love you all.

Down with the imperialists!

Love,

B Boyer
Flushing, NY

P.S. Jenny Bourne has such a beautiful voice; is she a singer?

Dear Andrew Phillips
I am a listener and subscriber of long-standing, and have been a heavy supporter since 1974-75 or so. I used to eat, sleep, breathe BAI and could not get enough of it. Nowadays, unfortunately, I listen only infrequently: to Simon Loekle when I am awake; to Margot Adler, when she is there; and to Mike Feder. Little by little, I have given up on WBAI. (I cannot tell you to how many station managers and program directors I have written, with no result at all.)

Recently, I tuned in during an 11:45PM-1:00AM program and heard Sidney Smith substituting for Margot. For the first time in many years, I felt a spark of hope. Sidney was charming, literate, interesting, had a balanced point of view, and lots of compassion. (Qualities that I have not heard much on BAI for these few years) and a pleasant voice as well.

I tried to speak to him during the whole 1-1:4 hours, but was unable to get through. Judging by the response, I was only one of many who were taken by Sidney and his thoroughly professional program.

I am therefore hoping that you will give Sidney Smith a talk spot of his own, so he can attempt to bring back some of the glory that was BAI in its heyday.

PRETTY PLEASE?

Sincerely,
Eva S
